Website Checkup by Telep IO

Site checked: <https://telep.io/>. Date: October 20, 2026.

Summary

We ran 38 checks on <https://telep.io/>: 32 passed, 5 need attention, 0 failed, and 1 info. In the Lighthouse phone test the site scored 98 for speed, 100 for SEO, 100 for accessibility and 100 for best practices, out of 100 each. The fixes below are ranked by how likely they are to affect calls and customer requests. The first one to do is: phone number and tap-to-call.

Fix these first

1. Phone number and tap-to-call

Warn

What we saw: On the home page and contact page we found no phone number in the page text, no tap-to-call (tel:) link and no telephone in the business structured data. Visitors can reach you by a contact form (<https://telep.io/contact>) and email only.

Why it matters: On a phone, a tap-to-call link is the quickest way for a ready customer to reach you. Without one, people who would rather call have to type a message or copy a number, and some give up.

How to fix: If you take calls, put the number in the header of every page as a tap-to-call link (`href="tel:+1..."`), repeat it on the contact page, and add it as telephone in your LocalBusiness structured data. If you prefer email only, keep the contact form one tap away on every page.

2. www.telep.io address

Warn

What we saw: <https://www.telep.io/> returns status 200 with its own copy of the home page instead of redirecting to <https://telep.io/>. The copy has a canonical tag pointing to https://telep.io, which tells Google which one to keep.

Why it matters: One address per page keeps links and shares counting toward the same page and avoids two copies of the site in search.

How to fix: Add a permanent (301) redirect from www.telep.io to telep.io, for example a Cloudflare Redirect Rule or your host's redirect setting.

3. Image sizes

Warn

What we saw: Lighthouse estimates savings of 12 KiB by sizing images for phone screens; 9 KiB by using WebP or AVIF. Image: <https://telep.io/grapevine.png>.

Why it matters: Smaller images load faster on phone data, which helps the page appear sooner.

How to fix: Export the listed images at the size they are shown, save as WebP or AVIF, and use srcset so phones get a smaller file.

How we checked: on October 20, 2026 we ran live checks of <https://telep.io/>: 3 Lighthouse 12.8.2 mobile tests (simulated phone and slower network; the middle run by speed score is shown), the Telep IO website checker and AI search checker, direct fetches of the home page, contact page, robots.txt, sitemap.xml and llms.txt, and an outside lookup of the http address. Results reflect the site on that date and can change when the site or its host changes. This report does not promise search rankings.
